

CHRISTIANS & GLOBAL WARMING

A BIBLICAL APPROACH TO EVANGELICAL ENGAGEMENT

OCTOBER 18, 2008
PURCELLVILLE, VIRGINIA

In partnership with the Cornwall Alliance for Stewardship of Creation, Patrick Henry College invites you to join us on the morning of Saturday, October 18, from 8:30am to noon, for an educational conference on Christians & Global Warming. The event will be held in Patrick Henry College's Town Hall.

Three noted scholars and scientists will present papers on the essential theological, scientific, and economic questions facing us, including:

- Is global warming occurring, and if so, how much? What are the likely natural and human causes?
- Is there a scientific consensus that climate change will be catastrophic? How should we interpret UN panel reports and media coverage of the issue?
- What is the economic impact of policies designed to address "climate change?"
- Most importantly, how can Christians respond Biblically? What does a Biblical ethic of responsible environmental stewardship look like? Is global warming the most important moral issue for this generation, how does it relate to concern for the poor, and how do we balance our response against the other issues facing the body of Christ?

Speakers

E. Calvin Beisner, Ph.D.

Theologian/Ethicist

The Cornwall Alliance for Stewardship of Creation

Roy W. Spencer, Ph.D.

Principal Research Scientist, University of Alabama, Huntsville

Former space scientist, NASA

Kenneth W. Chilton, Ph.D.

Founding Director, Institute for Study of Economics and the Environment

Lindenwood University

RSVP:

If you would like to attend, please RSVP to Peter Schellhase: (240) 427-8668 and pcschellhase@students.phc.edu. The event is free and open to the public.